Geraint Thomas Wins Opening Stage of Tour de France

Geraint Thomas won the opening stage of the Tour de France during a rain-drenched individual time trial in Düsseldorf, Germany.

DÜSSELDORF, Germany (Dispatches) — Chris Froome's most loyal support rider finally got some glory of his own.

Geraint Thomas has won the wet and slippery opening stage of the Tour de France and claimed the yellow jersey.

It was the first Grand Tour stage victory for Thomas, who has escorted Froome, his Team Sky teammate and the defending champion, to Paris for Froome's three Tour victories.

"I just can't believe it," Thomas said. "I got into cycling because of the Tour de France."

Thomas said he watched the Tour as a child and harangued his dad to get satellite TV coverage.

Averaging 32 miles per hour, Thomas required little more than 16 minutes to cover the almost entirely flat 8.7-mile individual time trial along the banks of the Rhine River in downtown Düsseldorf.

Murray Fit for Wimbledon Title Defense

LONDON (Dispatches) - Andy Murray insisted he is fit enough to start the defense of his Wimbledon title on Monday despite his recent struggles with a hip injury.

Murray sparked concerns he might have to withdraw from Wimbledon after cancelling two scheduled exhibition matches this week due to his sore hip.

The world number one was seen limping while practicing at Wimbledon over the weekend, but he is convinced he can make it through two weeks of the grass court Grand Slam.

"I'll be fine to play the event and play seven matches," Murray told reporters at Wimbledon on Sunday.

Murray, a two-time Wimbledon champion, will play the first match on Centre Court Monday against Kazakhstan's Alexander Bublik.

That will be a huge lift for Murray, who admitted he had been worried the hip pain wouldn't ease off in time for Wimbledon.

"You never know. I haven't been in that sort of position too often, only a few days before a Slam and not felt good at all," he said.

Facing world number 134 Bublik should be a gentle introduction to the tournament for Murray, who is desperately short of match practice on grass after a shock Queen's Club first-round loss against unheralded Australian Jordan Thompson.

Pacquiao Loses Contentious WBO Title Fight to Jeff Horn

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) - It went all the way and ended in a contentious bitter loss, the opposite of what Manny Pacquiao's handlers predicted for his WBO welterweight world title fight against Jeff Horn.

Pacquiao's long-time trainer Freddie Roach tipped a "short and sweet" knockout win for the 11-time world champion in Sunday's so-called 'Battle of Brisbane,' but Horn got a unanimous points decision in his first world title fight — delighting the 51,052-strong crowd.

The 38-year-old Philippines senator arrived in Brisbane a week ahead of the fight with a chartered plane carrying more than a hundred supporters and as the hot favorite to beat Horn. He leaves without the WBO belt.

All three judges awarded it to Horn, with Waleska Roldan scoring

Manny Pacquiao of the Philippines waves to his supporters after his loss to Jeff Horn of Australia, during their WBO World Welterweight title fight in Brisbane, Australia, Sunday, July 2, 2017.

it 117-111 and both Chris Flores and Ramon Cerdan scoring it 115-113.

Some critics slammed it as a hometown decision, saying the statistics had Pacquiao landing twice the number of power punches as Horn.

"That's the decision of the judges. I respect that," Pacquiao was quoted as saying by broadcaster ESPN. "We have a rematch clause, so no problem."

But Pacquiao's conditioning trainer, the Los Angeles-based former Australian heavyweight Justin Fortune, was critical of the referee and the judging.

"Manny lost the fight, but Jeff Horn looks like a pumpkin. Those scores, that card?" he said, "It should be the other way."

Fortune said Pacquiao should have taken any risk out of the equation.
