Workers Take to Streets in Worldwide May Day Protests

PARIS (AFP) - Workers, activists and others around the world took to the streets on Wednesday to mark May Day with protests over the pressure of rising prices and calls for greater labor rights. Several thousand protesters were in Paris, with others also organizing in cities across France. In Paris, a large crowd gathered in Place de la République for a rally, demanding better working conditions and higher wages.

In India, tens of thousands of farmers took to the streets to protest against the government's policies, which they say are designed to favor large corporate interests at the expense of small farmers. The farmers gathered in New Delhi, demanding an end to the policies that they say are leading to rising food prices and declining incomes.

In South Korea, workers held a rally in Seoul, calling for better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Korean Confederation of Trade Unions, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Britain, people demonstrated in Central London, holding signs that read "We demand better!" and "Justice for our workers!" The rally was organized by the TUC, and it was one of many take place around the UK.

In the United States, protests were also held in various cities, with people demanding better working conditions and higher wages. In Los Angeles, thousands of workers marched through the streets, holding signs that read "We demand better!" and "Justice for our workers!"

In Canada, workers held a rally in Toronto, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Canadian Labour Congress, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Brazil, a large crowd gathered in São Paulo for a rally, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Central Única Sindical, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Mexico, thousands of workers held a rally in Mexico City, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Confederación Nacional del Trabajo, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Argentina, a large crowd gathered in Buenos Aires for a rally, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Confederación General del Trabajo, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Spain, thousands of workers held a rally in Madrid, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Generalitat de Catalunya, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Italy, a large crowd gathered in Rome for a rally, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Italian Trade Union Confederation, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.

In Australia, a large crowd gathered in Sydney for a rally, demanding better labor rights and an end to the use of temporary foreign workers. The rally was organized by the Australian Council of Trade Unions, and thousands of workers from various industries participated.