India has been one of the top buyers of Russian oil, arguing the purchases are vital to meet the needs of its 1.4 billion people and to cushion its economy from global price shocks.

Despite Modi's efforts to cultivate ties with Washington since Donald Trump took office in January—and his endorsement of a Trump summit with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Alaska—the tariff threat is seen as the U.S. president's transactional and unilateral style in foreign policy.

Trump has pursued similar hardline tactics with other allies, from Europe to East Asia, pressing them on trade, defense spending, and energy choices.

Modi stressed India's push to develop its own defense and technology sectors, urging scientists and engineers to focus on building fighter jet engines, semiconductor chips, and advanced military

"We will have India-made semiconductor chips in the market by the year's end," he said, adding that India was also planning to construct its own space station and a "defense shield" within the next decade.

He also emphasized defending the interests of Indian farmers, a sector employing hundreds of millions and long a sticking point in U.S.-India trade talks.

"When economic selfishness is rising day by day... we must not just sit and worry about the crisis but instead focus on our strengths," he said.

Despite the tensions, U.S. Secretary of State Marco Rubio extended Independence Day greetings to Modi, describing U.S.-India ties as "consequential and far-reaching" and expressing hope to "ensure a brighter future for both."

Ukrainian Defenses Face a Challenge as Russian Troops Make Gains

DONETSK REGION, Ukraine (AP) — Days before the leaders of Russia and the U.S. hold a summit meeting in Alaska, Moscow's forces breached Ukrainian lines in a series of infiltrations in the country's industrial heartland of Donetsk.

This week's advances amount to only a limited success for Russia, analysts say, since it still needs to consolidate its gains before achieving a true breakthrough. Still, it's a potentially dangerous moment for Attention has been focused on Pokrovsk — a key highway and rail junction that once was home to about 60,000 and now is partially encircled but Russian forces have been probing for weaknesses north of the city, according to battlefield analysis site DeepState. The forces found a gap east of the coal-mining town of Dobropillia, and advanced about 10 kilometers (6 miles).

Ukraine's military has been repelling these attempts, he said, although DeepState said the situation has not been stabilized.

develop a landmark treaty to tackle plastic pollution have once again failed to reach an agreement, despite efforts late into the night to strike a deal. Delegates at a closing meeting of the Intergovernmental Negotiating Committee (INC) in Geneva on Friday spoke of their dismay at the failure to break a deadlock at the sixth round of talks in under three years, as countries remained deeply divided over the scope of any treaty.

"South Africa is disappointed that it was not possible for this session to agree a legally binding treaty and positions remain far apart," its delegate told a closing meeting.

Cuba's delegate said that negotiators had "missed a historic opportunity but we have to keep going and act urgently", the AFP news agency

"The planet, and present and future generations need this treaty.'

More than 1,000 delegates from at least 180 countries had gathered in the Swiss city for the latest meeting of the INC, a group established by the United Nations Environment Assembly in 2022 with the mandate to develop the world's first legally binding global treaty to tackle plastic pol-

The negotiations in Geneva were intended to be the last round of talks that would produce a deal – although the same was said of the previous round of talks held in Busan, South Korea, late last year.

Delegates had been working to a deadline of Thursday to reach a deal, and held frantic last-minute negotiations into the early hours of Friday to try to strike common ground before talks collapsed.

Countries remain divided between those seeking significant action, such as imposing caps on producing new plastic, and those, mostly oil-producing states, who want the deal to concentrate on waste management.

The so-called High Ambition Coalition, a large informal bloc which includes the European Union, the United Kingdom and Canada, as well as many Latin American and African countries, has pushed for the treaty to introduce curbs on plastic production Forest Fire Information System. MADRID (AP) — Firefighters in Spain, Portugal and Greece battled ongoing wildfires Friday, an important religious holiday in all three countries, as persistent hot, dry conditions challenged efforts to contain the blazes.

Spain was fighting 14 major fires, according to Virginia Barcones, general director of emergency services. Temperatures were expected to climb over the

"Today will once again be a very tough day, with an extreme risk of new fires," Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sánchez wrote on X.

The national weather agency AEMET warned of extreme fire risk in most of the country, including where the largest blazes were burning in the north and west. A heat wave which brought temperatures exceeding 40 degrees Celsius (104 Fahrenheit) on several days this month was expected to last through Monday.

Fires in the Galicia region forced the closure of several highways. The high speed rail line connecting it to Spain's capital, Madrid, remained suspended.

The fires in Spain this year have burned 158,000 hectares or 610 square miles, according to the European Union's European that European countries in need can call upon. A day before, Spain received two Canadair water bomber aircraft after requesting EU help to tackle blazes for the first time ever. In the past week, Greece, Bulgaria, Montenegro and Albania have requested help from the EU's firefighting force to deal with forest fires. The force has already been activated as many times this year as all of last year's fire season.

Canada's largest carrier has said it expects to cancel 500 flights by the end of the day, ahead of the planned Saturday strike, leaving some 100,000 passengers scrambling for alternatives. Flightradar data showed Air Canada had cancelled 30 flights as of 5:30 AM EDT on Friday (0930 GMT). The carrier's 10,000 flight attendants are gearing up to strike just before 1 a.m. EDT on Saturday over stalled contract talks on union demands for higher wages and compensation for unpaid work. left dozens injured. In Novi Sad, Serbia's second-largest city, police and SNS supporters loyal to populist President Aleksandar Vucic were absent as dozens of anti-government protesters smashed the windows of the party's offices, threw out furniture and SNS paraphernalia, and splashed paint across the entrance. Daily protests across Serbia, sparked by the deaths of 16 people when the roof of a renovated railway station in Novi Sad collapsed last November, have rattled the popularity of Vucic and the SNS.
