

Army Chief Warns of Stronger Response to Any Enemy Provocation

TEHRAN – Iran’s Army Commander Major General Amir Hatami warned Wednesday that any enemy provocation will be met with a response “several times stronger,” reiterating the need to enhance military preparedness and develop indigenous capabilities to defend the nation. Hatami said Iran had emerged as the “definitive winner” of the recent war with the United States and Israel, adding that Iran’s mission at this “historic juncture” is to enhance military preparedness and increase its power to achieve final victory.

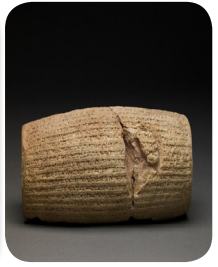

Yemen Pledges to Stand by Iran Amid U.S. Aggression

SANA’A (Dispatches) – Yemen’s foreign ministry pledged to stand by Iran’s side amid continued U.S. aggression, expressing support for the Islamic Republic’s response to the aggressor as a legitimate right under international law. In a statement, the ministry said continued U.S. violations against Iran would not “undermine Iran’s resolve or its determination to stand firm.” It said U.S. and the parties supporting it, will bear responsibility for the consequences of these actions.

Viewpoint

The Great Satan and its Devilish Minions

Tehran Celebrates UNESCO Resolution Recognizing Cyrus Cylinder

Iranian Badminton Players Win Central Asian Title With 15 Medals

Israel Unleashes Carnage in Gaza Neighborhood to Extract Special Forces

OPERATION PUNISHMENT OF THE AGGRESSOR

‘Heavier, Broader, More Devastating’: Iran Unleashes Hell on U.S. Forces

Armed forces pummel U.S. positions across West Asia with waves of missiles and drones, declaring the attacks a “decisive” response and warning countries hosting American forces to expel them or face “crushing” consequences.

TEHRAN – Iran’s Armed Forces have launched a series of combined retaliatory operations featuring missile and drone strikes targeting American military bases and interests across West Asia, following unprovoked U.S. aggression that martyred civilians at a wedding ceremony in southern Iran. The Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) announced the commencement of operations on Tuesday, with subsequent waves of attacks continuing into Wednesday against U.S. positions in Jordan, Kuwait, Bahrain, Iraq and the United Arab Emirates. The IRGC’s Aerospace Force carried out a heavy ballistic-missile strike against the U.S. Marine barracks known as Camp Titin in Jordan, located on the shores of the Gulf of Aqaba. “The attack killed a large number of U.S. personnel and destroyed several key facilities and the enemy’s attack helicopters,” the IRGC said. A second ballistic-missile strike targeted hangars housing long-range RQ-4 and MQ-9 unmanned aircraft at the Prince Hassan Air Base in Jordan. “A number of drones were destroyed, and several pilots and flight technical crew members were killed. Several of their technical infrastructure facilities were also set ablaze,” the IRGC said.

(Continued on Page 7)

After Minab School Massacre, U.S. Bombs Wedding in Kouhestak

TEHRAN – The United States has once again demonstrated its criminal nature by targeting a wedding ceremony in southern Iran, martyring at least five people including a child and wounding 68 others, Iranian officials said, adding to a long catalogue of American attacks on non-military targets across the Islamic Republic. The attack on the wedding reception in Kouhestak, Sirik County in Hormozgan Province, came as part of a wider wave of U.S. strikes that also targeted a fishing pier, a port authority tower, and a fishmeal factory on Qeshm Island – all civilian infrastructure with no military value, Iranian authorities said. “Minab school: children massacred. Lamerd sports hall: kids slaughtered. Kouhestak wedding: children killed with families,” Iranian Parliament Speaker Muhammad Bagher Ghalibaf wrote on X. “If a power acts like Satan, picks targets like Satan, and kills like Satan, it’s Satan.” The bombing of the wedding ceremony follows a long pattern of U.S. attacks on civilian targets since the beginning of the American-Israeli aggression against Iran on February 28. Iranian officials have documented numerous instances of U.S. forces striking schools, hospitals, residential areas and civilian infrastructure across southern provinces. On February 28, the first day of the U.S.-Israeli aggression, American Tomahawk missiles struck Shajareh Tayyebah Elementary School in Minab, Hormozgan Province, killing more than 160 schoolchildren. The attack shocked the nation and drew widespread condemnation from Iranian officials and international observers. The IRGC cited the Minab school massacre in a statement following the Kouhestak attack, noting that the United States has revived “poignant memories of the brutality that was staged against civilian targets during the last round of American-Israeli aggression.” In Fars Province, another southern Iranian province, U.S. Precision

(Continued on Page 7)

Iran Redraws Battle Map, Striking U.S. Base on Red Sea

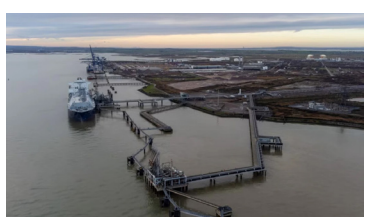

TEHRAN -- In a carefully coordinated operation that has sent shockwaves through American military planning, Iran’s Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) has struck Camp Titin, a U.S. Marine barracks in southern Jordan, killing a large number of American personnel and destroying key facilities and attack helicopters. The strike, carried out with heavy ballistic missiles under the sacred code “Ya Rasulullah (PBUH),” targeted the camp located on the shores of the Gulf of Aqaba, near the Jordanian port city of Aqaba – Jordan’s only access point to the Red Sea. The operation represents a significant strategic achievement for Iran, demonstrating that its military reach extends far beyond the Persian Gulf and challenging U.S. assumptions about safe havens for American forces in the region. Camp Titin’s geographical location makes it one of the most strategically significant U.S. military installations in West Asia. Situated at the northern tip of the Red Sea, near the port of Aqaba, Israeli occupied Eilat port, and within relatively close proximity to the Saudi border, the camp serves as an ideal location for U.S. Marine training exercises, maritime infrastructure protection, amphibious operations, and equipment transfer. Official U.S. Navy sources have recorded FASTCENT (U.S. Marine Rapid Response Unit) exercises at Camp Titin, confirming the base’s role as a hub for Marine

(Continued on Page 7)

Energy Shock From Iran War Spreads Across Europe and U.S.

LONDON (Dispatches) -- European natural gas prices have surged to their highest level since early 2023 as renewed U.S. strikes on Iran and Iran’s retaliation against American bases across West Asia revive fears that the war could choke off critical energy supplies ahead of winter. Dutch front-month gas futures climbed above €75 per megawatt-hour on Wednesday, their highest level since January 2023,

(Continued on Page 7)