Arab Regimes Abandon Palestinians to Zionist Genocide

By: Kayhan Int'l Staff Writer

The plight of the long-persecuted Palestinians, especially those of the genocide in Gaza, worsens with every passing day as the weapons of the Zionists, along with the vagaries of the weather as winter nears, have flooded the camps of the hundreds of thousands of displaced people whose homes the Israelis reduced to rubble.

The so-called international aid is peanuts and nothing more than cosmetic measure to fool world public opinion by the UN and its affiliated agencies that do not dare denounce the crimes against humanity of the occupiers of Palestine.

Torrential rains are taking the toll of the half-starved people of Gaza lacking even basic medical aid, while the constant bombing of the tents by Israel increases fatalities.

The Arab world, especially the oil-rich Persian Gulf sheikhdoms, as well as the states bordering Palestine, such as Egypt and Jordan, all of whom feel no sympathy for their fellow Arabs in Palestine, have remained indifferent.

Instead the rulers of these countries that have no support from the people they rule, are acting like foot soldiers of the US and the illegitimate Zionist entity in the war this devilish duo has imposed upon the Islamic Republic of Iran.

These Arab regimes have lost their senses and the ability to discern right from wrong, truth from falsehood, and the aggressed from the aggressor.

This is evident in their blind support for Saudi Arabia's war against Yemen and the almost daily bombing to death of fellow Muslim Arabs of the Arab world's poorest country.

Whenever the aggressed retaliate against the aggressor, these countries cry hoarse against Yemen's popular Ansarallah Movement that has every right to target the military and industrial installations of Saudi Arabia in response to the latter's indiscriminate bombing of towns, cities and the civilian infrastructure.

As a result, humanity continues to suffer and the Palestinians find themselves abandoned by Arab regimes to the weapons of the Israelis and the vagaries of the weather, as winter approaches and rains lash the makeshift dwelling of the Gazans.

Where is Islamic conscience? Where is Arab nationalism that the Arab regimes brag about? Where are humanitarian principles? Where is the will to confront the transgressors and provided much needed relief to the victims of the ongoing genocide in Gaza?

These are the questions the conscientious around the world are asking as the people of Gaza continue to be deprived of even the basic amenities.

Hezbollah Official: Iran Has Proven U.S. Is 'No Longer a Superpower'

BEIRUT -- The head of Hezbollah's Political Council said Iran has proven that a state can confront the United States and tell Washington it is no longer a superpower.

Sayyed Ibrahim Amin al-Sayyed, speaking at a ceremony marking Hezbollah's "Martyr's Day", said developments in Iran, Lebanon, Palestine and Yemen have reshaped "the course of peoples around the world, relations between countries and the ongoing struggle on the international stage".

"Iran has exposed the limits of Washington's military and political power in its confrontation with the US-Israeli axis," he said.

What Iran has done represents "a kind of reshaping, redrawing and rebuilding of a new region on the basis that there is a foundational state capable of confronting America and telling it: you are not a great state", he added.

Addressing U.S. President Donald Trump, al-Sayyed said: "Trump, who wants to build America's greatness and has worked for some time to achieve this goal, has failed miserably, because the elections constituted a massive shift not in America's favor. Consequently, America is no longer a superpower."

He added: "For the first time in the history of the United States, elections were held on the basis of being with the war on Iran or against it, and on the basis of whether we continue the relationship with Israel or not."

Al-Sayyed also touched on a shift in European positions, stating: "For the first time, we began to hear new positions against Israel from a number of European countries, and all of this is major transformation."

IRGC Warns France Over Israeli 'False-Flag Trap' in Supermarket Cyberattac

Cyberattacks reportedly targeted refrigeration systems in France, Belgium, Sweden, Ireland, The Netherlands and Estonia.

TEHRAN -- The Islamic Revolution Guards Corps warned France against falling into the Israeli "false-flag trap," after Paris blamed Tehran for a cyberattack that disabled refrigeration systems at hundreds of French supermarkets last month.

IRGC spokesman Brigadier General Hussein Mohebbi said in a post on X that Paris should be wary of a plot by "the Zionist regime," adding that "unlike the United States and the Zionist regime, civilians are not on the IRGC's target list."

He described the French allegation as "the Zionists' worn-out scenario to fuel Iranophobia and rally support across Europe."

France's foreign minister, Jean-Noël Barrot, claimed without the least evidence that the IRGC was behind the October 11-12 cyberattack, which raised temperatures in refrigerators at roughly 700 supermarkets, forcing stores to discard perishable food and causing some equipment to catch fire.

Paris took the strange measure of summoning Iran's ambassador and is seeking European-level sanctions.

Iran's Foreign Ministry rejected the accusation as "baseless and one-sided," saying it is intended to divert attention from France's own administrative failures.

"A government that cannot even manage the temperature of its own refrigerators now seeks to shift the blame onto foreign actors," the ministry said.

The IRGC's warning comes amid a broader pattern of cyber operations targeting civilian infrastructure that has been repeatedly traced to Israel and its allies.

Israel has also been linked to the mass exploitation of civilian mobile phone networks across the region.

The Pegasus spyware produced by Israel's NSO Group was used by client governments to target tens of thousands of phones belonging to journalists, activists, politicians, and even members of royal families, according to investigations by a consortium of media outlets.

More recently, thousands of pagers and walkie-talkies detonated simultaneously across Lebanon in September 2024, killing dozens and wounding more than 3,000 people, including children and civilians who were not members of Hezbollah.

The United Nations human rights chief at the time said the attack was "shocking" and that its impact on civilians was "unacceptable," warning that targeting thousands of people without knowing who was holding the devices violated international law.

The Stuxnet worm, widely reported to have been developed jointly by the United States and Israel, damaged centrifuges at Iran's Natanz enrichment facility around 2010, and the Flame virus was later identified as part of the same covert campaign against Iranian computer networks.

U.S.-Israeli Attacks on Iran Delay Climate Treaty Ratification

TEHRAN -- Iran said on Saturday that U.S. and Israeli attacks on its civilian infrastructure have delayed its ratification of the Kigali Amendment to the Montreal Protocol, but insisted it remains an active participant in international ozone protection efforts.

Hussein Shahbaz, head of Iran's National Ozone Layer Protection Unit at the Department of Environment, made the remarks at the 38th Meeting of the Parties to the Montreal Protocol held in Kigali, Rwanda, from November 2 to 6.

The meeting coincided with the tenth anniversary of the Kigali Amendment.

"In this statement, it was explained that the enemy's attacks on civilian centers and the country's infrastructure have delayed the process of ratifying the Kigali Amendment," Shahbaz said, adding that "if these attacks stop, the ratification process will be pursued rapidly".

Shahbaz described Iran as "among the active countries in the field of eliminating ozone-depleting substances and managing substances controlled by this protocol".

He said Iran has carried out effective measures in phasing out ozone-depleting substances and managing chemicals controlled under the Montreal Protocol and the Vienna Convention.

According to figures published by the United Nations Development Program, Iran has phased out approximately 10,000 tonnes of ozone-depleting substances and converted or equipped 1,377

Iraqi MP: U.S. Envoy Secretly Pressed Baghdad to Close Border With Iran

BAGHDAD -- A U.S. envoy secretly pressured Iraq's government to close its airspace and land border crossings with Iran, an Iraqi parliament member has revealed, as popular and political demands for reopening the crossings persist despite Washington's push to tighten its economic squeeze on Tehran.

Abdullah al-Dulaimi, a member of the Anbar Alliance, said Tom Barrack, the U.S. president's envoy, made the request during a visit to Baghdad without prior public announcement, the Iraqi news agency Al-Maalomah reported Sunday.

Barrack asked Baghdad to close its airspace to all flights and take similar measures against land and sea crossings with Iran, and to settle Iraq's debts to Iran in Iraqi dinars rather than dollars.

The report said Prime Minister Ali al-Zaidi's government has agreed to the measures despite awareness of their impact on Iraq's economy, particularly the market's reliance on Iranian goods.

The pressure campaign comes amid broader U.S. efforts to sever Iran's overland trade routes after imposing a naval blockade and cutting air links.

The New York Times reported last week that Washington had for weeks pressed Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan to close their border crossings with Iran, but the three neighbors resisted, viewing the demands as harmful to their own interests.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Fuad Hussein said in an interview with AFP published late last week that Baghdad has not implemented the U.S. request.

"We cannot close our borders with Iran," Hussein said. "Implementing this demand would be a kind of sanction against the Iraqi people. Until now, we have not implemented it.

Araghchi Visits Pakistan, Oman for ECO Summit, Bilateral Talks

TEHRAN -- Iran's Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi will visit Pakistan and Oman this week for a key regional economic summit and bilateral talks, the Foreign Ministry announced Sunday.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Esmaeil Baqaei said Araghchi will travel to Islamabad on Monday to attend the 30th meeting of the Economic Cooperation Organization (ECO) Council of Ministers.

The meeting, scheduled for November 15-16, will focus on economic and trade cooperation among the organization's 10 member states.

Araghchi will then travel to Muscat on Tuesday for talks with his Omani counterpart, Badr al-Busaidi, Baqaei said.

Ahead of the trip, Iran's ambassador to Pakistan, Reza Amiri Moghaddam, told Asia One News in Islamabad that Iran is fully prepared to bring border trade to 100 percent of its capacity and serve as an east-west transit hub.

He said any balanced negotiations with Washington depend on the United States accepting Iran's conditions.

On regional security, the ambassador said the Strait of Hormuz was closed due to U.S. aggression and blockades, while a northern corridor remains open for friendly countries such as Pakistan to import needed energy with appropriate security coordination.

He reiterated Iran's support for regional security managed by regional countries themselves, citing the Hormuz Peace Initiative and a clause in UN Resolution 598 envisioning security arrangements involving Iran, Iraq, and the six Persian Gulf Cooperation Council states.

He condemned hostile U.S. actions, including the withdrawal from international agreements, naval blockades, the freezing of Iranian assets, and the assassination of General Qassem Soleimani, calling for the release of blocked assets and an end to military aggression in the region.

The Ambassador said Tehran has never left the negotiating
